Demolishing the original house on this Templeton site on the outskirts of Christchurch gave the owners the opportunity to design a home that perfectly suited their needs in a beautiful, established garden setting. The first of those needs was to maximise connection to the garden with large floor-to-ceiling windows and doors that open out onto a verandah covered by a deep roof extension. Provision of a main bedroom suite separated from guest bedrooms has been addressed by placing it adjacent to the living zone and guests in a wing opposite.
